A Few Things About You

Full Name: _____

Who Brought You Into Team Excellence?: _____

What made you say yes to building a business with Team Excellence?

Realistically, how many hours a week can you dedicate to this? _____ hours

Keep your 'why' close: the reason you started, the goal you're chasing, the life you're building.

Core Values

The Foundation of Everything We Do

Serve Others First	We put clients, teammates, and community first. Our success starts with making a difference for others.
Take 100% Personal Responsibility	We own our actions, results, and growth. No excuses—just solutions and accountability.
See the Person	We treat everyone with respect and always see the human first.
Be Direct & Honest	We communicate honestly and transparently, even when it's tough. Trust is built on openness.
Always Improve	We're always learning, growing, and raising the bar for ourselves and our clients.
Focus on Our Mission	We focus on our roles, our goals, and our mission – no drama.
Lift Each Other Up	We celebrate wins, lift each other up, and create an environment where everyone thrives.
Excel with Integrity	We bring our best, act with integrity, and build lasting relationships on trust and respect.

Standards We Live By

Look the Part: Ours is a relationship-driven business, and how you present yourself shapes how quickly people trust you. Dress professionally for trainings, office visits, client meetings, and team events.

Show Up On Time, Every Time: Punctuality at meetings and trainings isn't optional. The standard you model is the standard your future recruits will copy.

Bring Your A-Game to Virtual Sessions: Camera on, phone down, no side chats or multitasking during online trainings. Stay on mute when you're not speaking, and use the hand-raise feature when you have something to add.

Write It Down: You won't retain everything you hear, so build the habit of capturing notes—whether that's a notebook or a notes app—every time you learn something new.

Treat the Office Like It's Yours: Put furniture back where you found it, wipe down the whiteboard when you're finished, and clean up after yourself in shared spaces. Leave things better than you found them.

Be Considerate of Others Working Around You: Hold off on playing music, watching videos, or anything else that could pull focus away from teammates sharing the space.

Celebrate the People Around You: Show appreciation for anyone presenting at a training or event, and help keep the culture upbeat and supportive. Stay active in team chats and shared spaces.

Show Up for the Big Moments: Don't skip the major events. Attending company-wide gatherings is a direct investment in your own growth—treat it that way.

Follow the Chain of Command: You're welcome to learn from any leader in the organization, but don't skip past your own. Your Team Lead is your first point of contact; if you need more support, work your way up through the proper leadership channels.

Your Results Are In Your Hands: What you get out of this business is a direct reflection of what you put in. Show up consistently, treat your time as a real investment, and prioritize being present—that's where mentorship and momentum come from.

What It Takes to Win

Mental Game

- Put the Client First — Every decision should pass through the filter of what's genuinely best for them.
- Guard Your Time — Finish what you start, and finish it when you said you would.
- Push Through the Hard Days — Setbacks are guaranteed; quitting is the only thing that isn't.

Habits That Compound

- Talk to Someone Every Day — One call a day keeps your pipeline alive and your prospects engaged.
- Stay Visible — Trainings and office time keep your skills sharp and your motivation high.
- Feed Your Mind Daily — A few pages of reading or a good podcast episode adds up fast.
- Trust the Process — Act on the direction your leaders and Team Leads give you.

Growing the Business

- Build a Name People Trust — Show up consistently online and in your community as someone worth knowing.
- Know What You're Selling — Get fluent in your core offerings so you can serve clients with confidence.
- Keep the Pipeline Moving — Add to your contact list daily and don't let follow-ups go stale.

Leading Others

- Grow People, Not Just Numbers — Help the people you bring in build careers they're proud of.
- Stay Connected to the Why — Remember the bigger purpose: helping families get financially stronger.

Pick Your Growth Strategy

Choose the approach that fits where your business is today, then commit to acting on it now.

1. Sweat Equity — Roll up your sleeves.

- Begin with the people already in your circle: friends, family, and current contacts.
- Use the trust you've already earned to open doors faster.
- Post content, share updates, and record videos that draw prospective clients in.
- Grow your reach organically through genuine engagement.

2. Capital Investment — Fuel growth with budget.

- Invest in a polished website that's built to rank in search.
- Bring in leads through paid search and strengthen your brand's reputation.
- Tap into paid digital ads and lead-generation platforms.
- Extend your reach further with radio and TV placements.

Learn Straight From People Who've Done It: Get real-time coaching, honest feedback, and exposure to actual client scenarios that build a tougher, more resilient mindset.

Booking Calls That Actually Work

Your Go-To Script for Booking New Appointments

M	Hey John, how's it going? How's Mary doing, and the kids? (a little small talk) Got a MINUTE to talk? Awesome.
E	So, I'm not sure if this has come up, but I recently joined a company called Experior
T	...and right now I'm going through TRAINING with them. Part of that means I need to run through 8 to 10 practice presentations with my field trainer so I can really get the hang of things before I'm fully up and running.
H	I was actually hoping you and (spouse) could HELP me out with that. Could I swing by sometime next week for about 30-40 minutes to walk you through what I'm working on? Nothing's for sale and there's zero obligation—just listen. If something does catch your interest, you can always follow up with [Trainer Name] afterward.
O	Worst case, you'd still be helping me out just by OPENING a door or two. I'm free Monday and Tuesday next week—which works better for you?
D	Perfect, appreciate it John. Quick FAVOR—mind locking that into your calendar now? If anything changes, just give me a heads-up so we can find another time. I'll have [Trainer Name] there with me, and showing up reliably really matters for my credibility with him, so I'd hate to have to reschedule. And let's make sure (spouse) can be there too, okay?

OR try: "Does a weekday or a weekend work better for you?"

Weekdays: Monday or Thursday — afternoon or evening? 2 or 4pm / 6 or 8pm?

Weekends: Saturday or Sunday — afternoon or evening? 2 or 4pm / 6 or 8pm?

Appreciate you, John—see you _____ at _____.
